

Supporting Practice through Research and Education

Highlights

Funding Partners

A New International Master's Program on Food City Design

Background	Course	Module
Between 2020-2023, a partnership of UCCN Gastronomy Cities worked together to deliver a pilot international Master's program on Food City Design. Based on this successful pilot, Mid Sweden University is now working to launch a permanent, two year program together with the University of Parma.	The Provenance of Local Food Food Tourism and Local Development Culture and Creativity for Sustainable Regional Development Food Environment Advancing Wellness and Sustainability	Agri-food district Industrializing and de-industrializing food Local food development strategies The Food Museums: - by a historical point of view - by an economical point of view Fish production and changing fish production Gastronomy Landscape and Food Cities The case of Parma City of Gastronomy The case of Östersund City of Gastronomy Cider production in the Hardanger region Biodiversity, agriculture and traditional foods Ethical purchasing group The Jämtland-Östersund Foodscape Primary food production and formation of landscape in coastal areas Giocampus Project Craft Beer laboratory Project Local food plants and University's botanical garden Food and education policies

Food City Design Pilot Partners